

TV without captioning is totally useless to hard of hearing and deaf persons. Similarly for movies. There are about 30 million hearing impaired US citizens. The least available captioning is on local TV programming and news where vital emergency information is mostly broadcast without captioning, putting the hard of hearing and deaf at risk. This situation urgently needs correcting by more stringent laws and regulations.